Civic Club Notes

The regular meeting of the Civic Club will be held in the Trust Building, at 7.45 o'clock, Monday evening. A Board meeting is called for a short time before the regular meeting, and all members are requested to be present.

We are now experiencing great annoyance from the mosquito pest and members of the Club are urged to wage war against them unceasingly. Hunt up every tin can or discarded receptacle which may hold a few drops of water, and drain or fill up all hollows or damp places around your premises, examine your garbage cans, spouting, and all places which afford breeding spots for the pests, and distribute lime and coal oil freely. This is the only way to get rid of them and search must be made weekly. Many parts of the town have been oiled and the dust is fast disappearing. Here's to a dustless, flyless, mosquitoless Bedford!

Reighard-Hertzler

Last week at Lancaster the First Reformed Church was the scene of a beautiful wedding, when Frank L. Reighard, of Friend's Cove, Bedford County, and Nancy K. Hertzler, daughter of Aaron Hertzler, of this city, were united in wedlock. The officiating clergymen were the bride's brother-in-law, Rev. Walter C. Pugh and Rev. W. Stuart Cramer. The ring ceremony was used. Besides many personal friends of the bride, the immediate families of both bride and groom were in attendance. After the ceremony, a wedding luncheon was served to the party at Hotel Brunswick. Mr. and Mrs. Reighard left at 1.30 o'clock by automobile for Harrisburg, whence they will go on an extended wedding trip. After their return they will reside at Friend's Cove. Many beautiful presents were received by the bride, which were on exhibition for her friends at her home.—Lancaster News Journal.

Kaufman Reunion

The sixteenth annual Kaufman reunion, will be held at Oster's Grove, Osterburg, on Saturday, August 5th, 1916. All are cordially invited to come with baskets well filled and spend the day with us. Maggie Oster, Secretary.

Bainbridge Colby's Tribute to President Wilson

"I am not one of the F. O. B. G. O. P. packages," said Mr. Colby, referring to a phase in Mr. Pulitzer's speech. "Some of those packages were broken in transit, and I have reason to believe the leakage is considerable."

After he had paid his respects to the women in the boxes, Mr. Colby said:

"Mr. President, I speak from the standpoint of a party that may be alien to you in fact but is kindred to you in feeling and in purpose. We claim no monopoly on Progressivism. Your course, sir, has been watched and approved by Progressives who have seen in your acts the realization of their ideals and a purpose to restore this country to the people who founded it and to whom it belongs."

"You have been criticised, but not by the rank and file of the Progressive Party, who feel that what you have done entitles you to a place with those who bore the most revered names in our history."

Then Mr. Colby spoke at some length of Lincoln, in a way drawing a parallel between Lincoln and President Wilson, pointing out the severe criticism that had been levelled at Lincoln, and declaring:

"We treat our President sometimes very badly, but, thank God, there is an underlying sense of fairness and resolution in us, to do justice eventually and enshrine their names in the loving memory and the grateful affection of time."

Dissects Bull Moose Body

Referring to the President's utterance of Thursday, in which he said that when a man began to deny a thing there was usually reason to suspect that it might be true, Mr. Colby said:

"I am glad to see, sir, that you have not wasted time in futile and unrequired denials."

Mr. Colby took a sharp rap at the Progressive National Committee, composed, he said partly of proxies and partly of employees, and then he went on to say that every one was for peace; that it stood to reason that American lives and property would be protected, and then, again referring to the criticism of the President, he said:

"They say he writes notes—good notes. They say his policy is pacific—a pretty sound policy."

Then he recalled that an English paper had asserted that the Sussex note had reduced the submarine warfare to a minimum, and continued:

"I wonder how many submarines, what measure of preparedness would have accomplished in a fortnight the reduction of the submarine warfare, by the most belligerent nation in Europe to insignificant proportions as that note did."

"I am a Progressive," Mr. Colby went on, "a member of the Progressive party, and I have been an officer in that party; was one of its organizers. I shall stick by the ship until it is recognized by officers and crew alike that it is unseaworthy and must be abandoned. It is my duty to float off the bridge; I cannot strike out for myself."

"But I can, I think, speak as a representative of that party when I say that the friends of Woodrow Wilson in the Progressive Party are legion and that while a little stalking horse of a national committee may refuse to pass a resolution, the action of the members of the Progressive Party throughout the country is destined to be dictated by their individual consciences and nothing else."

Car Slips Into River at Chalybeate

Last Sunday about 3 o'clock p. m., Randall Von Stein, from Clearville and his two lassies, two, mind you, were motoring up the river from the Narrows on the Chalybeate road. Randall was so absorbed with his passengers that he didn't notice the bend in the road at the twin bridges so the auto leisurely proceeded to ford Dunning's Creek, instead of crossing on the bridge. The ladies got wet feet, and likely cold feet as well, and began to yell. Randall's car stopped right in the water in obedience to the call but Randall had deserted the boat before it got into the water. No wonder Randall hasn't been married long before this. He is not gallant enough.

Huston.

Bedford County Ministers Organize and Hold Meeting

On June 19th, a number of the ministers of Bedford County, according to previous call, met at the Everett Reformed Church and organized after some discussion, the Bedford County Ministerial Association.

The object of the association as expressed in the constitution is "the mutual good of each minister—for the uniting of the Christian forces of the county for effective work—for the enlargement of vision and service."

The organization was effected by the following ministers: K. A. Bashara, was chosen President, Carl V. Drake, Vice President; L. Stoy Spangler, Cor. Secretary; A. J. Miller, Treasurer, M. J. Weaver, Rec. Secretary.

Committee on program and constitution were then appointed and arrangements made to meet July 3 in Everett M. E. Church, where according to arrangements a meeting was held last Monday.

The report of the committee on constitution was adopted. The committee on program had arranged that Rev. D. J. Frum appear on this first program. Rev. Frum presented a strong and appropriate sermon on the text "In the name of our God we will set up our banner." Ps. 20:5. After some comments on the points of strength in the sermon the meeting adjourned to meet in Bedford Lutheran church the first Monday in September, at 10.00 a. m. All ministers of the county are invited.

M. J. Weaver.

Sunday Evening Group Meetings in the Bedford Churches During the Month of July

Instead of the open air union services on the Public Square, as last Summer, the four churches which joined in these services, viz: the Trinity Lutheran, the Methodist Episcopal, the Presbyterian and the St. John's Reformed, have arranged for a series of group meetings to be held during the remaining Sunday evenings of July, with service in two instead of all four of the churches each Sunday evening. According to this plan the services for next Sunday evening, beginning at 7.30, will be in the Trinity Lutheran, and the St. John's Reformed churches, with Rev. G. W. Faus, of the Methodist church, preaching in the former, and Rev. H. E. Wileand of the Lutheran church in the latter. The following Sunday evening, July 16, the services will be in the Presbyterian and Methodist churches. With this arrangement there ought to be two large and inspiring audiences each Sunday evening, with spirited and helpful services. If the members of the churches in which the service is held each Sunday evening will be loyal to the service in their own church, and the members of the two vacant churches will attend the service in their group, the success of this plan will be assured and both pastors and people will enjoy the larger audiences and the more fraternal spirit. Strangers welcome.

Wilson's Foreign Policy Main Issue, Glynn Says

Attitude of Lincoln Closely Followed In Lusitania Case. Quotes From Great Presidents, Republican as Well as Democratic, in Justifying Bloodless Diplomatic Victories. Neutrality as Truly American as the Flag.

Record Challenges Criticism

In this as in all the other big questions of life, the more we understand the past, the better we shall judge the present. Where it took 10 years to secure inadequate compensation for the Alabama claim, the present administration has already secured in the case of a single claimant reparation greater than all the Alabama claims combined. Where, in other administrations during great foreign wars, the American flag was merely an invitation to plunder, today that flag is the best protection of all who desire to be safe upon the seas.

Where Washington vainly pleaded for recognition of our neutral rights, where Jefferson sought in vain to protect our shipping, where Lincoln failed to gain us the freedom of the seas, the man who now sits in the presidential chair has secured from every warring Power, from every Empire under the sun, the formal and definite assurance that the neutral rights of America shall be respected and observed.

We challenge our critics to deny a single fact in the record. We defy them to show a single point at which the helmsman who has safely piloted us through Europe's storm has departed from the course laid down by those who established America's Foreign policy.

Policy of Negotiation

"To maintain our national honor by peace if we can, by war if we must," is the motto of the President of the United States.

But before submitting to the chance and misery of war, true statesman that he is, he proposes to put the reason and justice of negotiation to the test. If they are as patriotic as they pretend those who censure this policy of negotiation may blush from shame to learn that they censure the policy pursued by the signers of the Declaration of Independence.

In the document which made us free John Hancock and Benjamin Franklin and Charles Carroll and all the other signers declare (I quote their exact words), they declare they "appealed," they declare they "conjured," they declare they "warned," they declare they "reminded" England of our wrongs before we went to war.

Anyone can disparage diplomatic procedure, but only men of patience and principle can successfully conduct it.

Just as Rufus King criticised Washington's negotiation with France in the Genet affair, just as the members of John Adams' own Cabinet criticised his negotiations which averted war with France, just as Horace Greely criticised Lincoln; so for personal and political purposes men whose ambitions outrun their sense of justice criticise the negotiations of the President to-day.

Fighting for Every Degree of Injury Would Involve U. S. in Perpetual War

But, say our critics, this policy satisfies no one.

They mean it does not satisfy those who would map out a new and untried course for this nation to pursue, but they forget it does satisfy those who believe the United States should live up to the principles it has professed for a century and more.

Chief Justice White of the United States Supreme Court says this policy has given America the greatest diplomatic victory of the past generation. Maximilian Harden, Germany's noted editor, says "that never once has this Republic violated its neutrality, and Gilbert K Chesterton, the famous English journalist, says, "it is the duty of the President of the United States to protect the interests of the people of the United States," that "he can't dip his country into hell just to show the world he has a keen sense of being an individual savior."

This policy may not satisfy those who revel in destruction and find pleasure in despair. It may not satisfy the fire-eater or the swashbuckler. But it does satisfy those who worship at the altar of the God of Peace. It does satisfy the mothers of the land at whose hearth and fireside no jingoistic war has placed an empty chair. It does satisfy the daughters of this land from whom bluster and brag has sent no loving brother to the dissolution of the grave. It does satisfy the fathers of this land and the sons of this land who will fight for our flag, and die for our flag when Reason primes the rifle, when Honor draws the sword, when Justice breathes a blessing on the standards they uphold.

Peril in Opposition Policy.

And whom, we ask, will the policy of our opponents satisfy, and for how long? Fighting for every degree of injury would mean perpetual war and this is the policy of our opponents, deny it how they will. It would not allow the United States to keep the sword out of the scabbard as long as there remains an unrighted wrong or an unsatisfied hope between the snowy wastes of Siberia and the jungled hills of Borneo. It would make America as dangerous to itself and to others, as destructive and as uncontrollable as the cannon the slipped its moorings in Victor Hugo's tale of '93. It would give us a war abroad each time the fighting cock of the European weather vane shifted with the breeze. It would make America the cockpit of the world. It would mean the reversal of our traditional policy of Government. It would mean the adoption of imperialistic doctrines which we have denounced for over a century. It would make all the other nations the wards of the United States and the United States the keeper of the world.

What would become of the Monroe Doctrine under such a policy? How long do our opponents suppose we would be allowed to meddle in European affairs while denying Europe the right to meddle in American affairs? The policy of our opponents is a dream. It never could be a possibility. It is not even advanced in good faith, it is simply an appeal to passion and pride, to sympathy and prejudice, to secure partisan advantage. In a word, this policy of our opponents would make the United States the policeman of the world. Rome tried to be policeman of the world and went down; Portugal tried to be policeman of the world and went down; Spain tried and went down, and the United States proposes to profit by the experience of the ages and avoid ambitions whose reward is sorrow and whose crown is death.

National Honor

In desperation for a slogan our opponents try to create an issue out of national honor.

Now national honor is not the whim of an individual mind. National honor is the composite sentiment, the composite reason of a whole people feeling the emotions of nature and following the dictates of God.

And it is for this reason that "the power" to declare war is conferred by the Constitution of these United States, not on the individual will of the President, but on the composite reason, the representative decision of "the Congress of the United States."

Do, then, the Hotspurs of this country mean to proclaim themselves more jealous of our national honor than the framers of the Constitution than Washington or Lincoln? Where when and from whom did they receive their commission as keepers and interpreters of the honor of this nation? Who gave them a monopoly of the workings of the brain or the emotions of the heart? What mystic faculty do they possess which nature has denied to other men?

Criticism Not Patriotism

They proceed on the theory that the noisiest man in the land is the best patriot.

Fearful within, blustering without, the coward whistles to keep up courage, and hopes the world will read in his face what is not in his heart. The brave man, conscious of what is in his heart and careless of whether or not the world reads it in his face, neither whistles to deceive his neighbors nor publishes his patriotism to win the Pharisee's crown of self-praise.

These noisy critics forget that an appreciation of honor is as elemental in every man as the instinct which calls the flush of rage to the cheek or the blaze of anger to the eye. When the honor of this country is outraged or he glory of its flag is besmirched, the man of the street, the toiler in the fields, the artisan in the shops, the man who shoulders his musket and marches away at his country's call, will need no one to tell him, no one to show him where duty lies and manhood calls. The men who will do the fighting, will not have to be drummed to war—they will summon themselves to battle with the valor of a Jackson and the ardor of a Wayne.

The genius of this country is for peace. Compared with the blood-smeared pages of Europe our records are almost immaculate. In the making of no other nation has conquest played so small a part. Stolen wealth does not fill our coffers or ravished territory swell our domains.

We have built our greatness on the resources of nature and the peaceful toil of our people. The ring of the anvil, not the rattle of the saber; the song of the reaper, not the shriek of the soldier; the clatter of the shuttle, not the crack of the rifle, have won us the place we occupy to-day in the councils of the world.

With us war has never been a choice; it has always been a fate. We would like to furl the flags of war and still its throbbing drums; we sigh for the day when men will beat their swords into plowshares, their spears into pruning hooks; but we recognize that the miracle is yet to be performed which perfects human nature and imbues nations with the spirit to do unto others as they would do unto us.

Like the old Mohawk chief who loved peace, we would like to throw the tomahawk of war so high in the sky that no man's hand could ever pull it down. But when some other tribe among the races of men sends us a bundle of arrows wrapped in the skin of a rattlesnake, we want, like old Gov. Bradford of Massachusetts, to be in a position to send that rattlesnake's skin back stuffed with powder and with ball.

We deprecate the compulsion but we recognize the need of the policeman on the beat, the safe in the bank and the watchdog on the farm.

Need for Preparedness

We pray for the millennium, but we accept things as they are. As men of common sense we realize that for a nation, the policy of turning the other cheek when unjustly smitten means national decapitation and a funeral at which our people would be the mourners, our enemies our heirs.

We fought one war for existence and one for survival. We fought one war to exclude foreign influence and another to preserve internal peace. And we would fight four more wars for the same reasons, but the reasons we must have. When necessity demands we stand ready to meet with force the enemies of our honor and the foes of our integrity.

The war across the seas has brought home to us the fear that so long as men are men and nations nations, war will continue.

We have been aroused from our dreams of the millennium to the knowledge that nothing that men cherish is safe from assault, that the man who would preserve his rights to life, to liberty and to happiness must stand ready to defend those rights with the last drop of his blood.

We have been carried too close to the rocks of war during the past two years to believe that those rocks do not exist. And, looking into the future, we can perceive that if our sovereignty is not challenged, if our peace is not assailed, it will only be because the world knows that we are strong enough to defend ourselves from every foe.

Wilson's Defense Policy

For these reasons this administration has done more for our army and our navy than any administration in our history.

More than this, it has mobilized the resources of the nation to meet the needs of war. It has placed the wealth of the country back of the strength of the country, the toiler back of the soldier and the sailor.

And to our opponents we say you can't create an army, can't build a navy in the course of a day; to them we say if our navy is not strong enough, if our army is not big enough, the Republican party is 80 per cent to blame, for the Republican party has been in control of this nation 80 per cent. of the time during the past 50 years.

The Democratic party advocates and seeks preparedness, but preparedness for defense, not preparedness for aggression.

BACKING UP PROOF

The Kind That Bedford People Cannot Deny.

Many an earnest Bedford man or woman has publicly endorsed Doan's Kidney Pills.

Week after week, month after month you've read their statements. Would these Bedford people recommend any medicine if it were not good?

Would they confirm and repeat their statements after years had passed?

Local proof is good evidence. Testimony confirmed years after is better evidence.

The following Bedford woman's statement leaves no room for doubt. It must convince every kidney sufferer who reads it.

If your back aches—if your kidneys are weak, profit by Mrs. Davidson's experience:

Mrs. Martha Davidson, 357 West Pitt St., Bedford, says: "I was very nervous and had severe headaches. My back ached constantly and the least bit of work tired me. When I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I decided to give them a trial and got a box at Heckman's Drug Store. In every way they acted just as represented and gave me prompt relief."

Over Six Years Later, Mrs. Davidson said: "I have used Doan's Kidney Pills once in awhile since first endorsing them and they have kept me in good health."

The above statement must carry conviction to the mind of every reader. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—ask distinctly for Doan's Kidney Pills, the same that Mrs. Davidson has twice publicly recommended. The remedy backed by home testimony. 50c all stores. Foster-Milburn Co., Props., Buffalo, N. Y.

"When Your Back is Lame—Remember the Name."

It is the preparedness which builds the nation's house upon a rock, so it will not fall when the rains descend and the floods come and the winds blow.

We may look upon preparedness with as little favor as we look upon taxes, but we pay taxes because we want protection for which the taxes pay.

Democracy refuses to be frightened by those who pretend to fear that this land of freedom will descend into the abyss of militarism.

Militarism in United States as Impossible as Ghost's Shadow at Midday

It knows that militarism can no more thrive in this country than the cockle and the tare can thrive amid the wheat of the husbandman who loves his land. It knows the preparedness, that reasonable preparedness, will not kill democracy in this country any more than it killed democracy in Switzerland. It knows that reasonable preparedness will insure us peace just as it insured peace for Switzerland, though war thundered at her doors.

Militarism in the United States is as impossible as the shadow of a ghost in the midday sun. We had a triumphant army in 1776, we had an invincible navy in 1812 and in 1860 we had the two greatest armies the world had ever seen.

But when the crisis passed that called these freemen to the colors the first to leap forward at their country's call were the first to return to the farms and factories whence they came.

From the ranks of democracy they came as silently as Putnam left his plow in answer to the shot heard around the world; and back to democracy they went as silently as the Southern heroes whose horses Grant returned that they might plow the very fields which had been narrowed by their cannon's wheels.

These, then, are the principles that have been asserted and followed by the president of the United States during the past two years—that the United States shall not embroil itself in European strife, that the United States shall endeavor to maintain friendly and cordial relations with every other nation and that the United States shall firmly assert and maintain its neutral rights against every belligerent.

Nothing in the assertion of these principles by the President has caused the nation so many anxious hours as the fear that the temper of the American people might be misunderstood.

Efforts have been made and may be made again to create an impression here and abroad that in asserting these principles the President spoke for only a fraction of the American people, that the nation itself was divided, and that the President's solemn words could be disregarded because the American people would not stand solidly behind him.

This convention must make it plain that all divisions among the American people stop at the ocean's edge. This convention must declare and must give the country the means to declare that when the President of the United States speaks to a foreign Power he speaks for every citizen of America, that when the nation's Chief Executive asserts a policy that has been an American policy since the beginning of the nation his action has behind it the force and strength of a loyal and united people.

Follow But One Flag

We, who know and love America, know how false, how vain, how unreal, are the efforts of those who pictures us to the world as divided against ourselves. We know that so far as our international relations are concerned we hold but one faith, acknowledge but one loyalty, follow but one flag.

We of this convention, representing every section of the United States, speaking for every racial strain in America, must send forth a message to all the world that will leave no room for doubt.

We must enable every real American to stand up and assert his Americanism. We must make the issue so clear that every ballot box in the land may become a monument to the loyalty of American manhood.

The citizens of this country will stand behind their President because his policies are right. They will stand behind him because his policies are the policies which have brought the nation a century of prosperous and honored peace. They will stand behind him because they want these policies continued, that prosperity prolonged, that peace assured.

Yet, over and above every other reason that the nation may have for upholding its President, is the necessity of proving to the world that we are a united people.

Loyalty of Foreign-Born

So long as other nations of the earth realize that the millions under America's flag think as one, believe as one and act as one in the face of foreign wars, we shall be free from foreign intrigue, and all that it entails. Once let the nation get abroad that this nation is merely a confederation of diverse and conflicting allegiances, and we shall never be safe from the machinations of foreign Powers.

A regard for national surety, as well as a pride of personal honor, will therefore bring American people to the support of their President. Whether their blood is drawn from the banks of the Rhine or where the River Shannon flows, whether they hail from Alpine valleys or the meadows of the Pyrenees, whether their descent be German or French, Irish or English, Austrian or Italian, Russian or Greek, the men who have sworn an oath of fealty to the ideals of America will be true.

They may love the lands of their fathers much, but they love the land of their children more. They may cherish the memory of the sod from which they sprung, but they stand ready to die for the soil that they have hallowed with their homes.

America Comes First

Their loyalty to America is more than loyalty to a name; their allegiance is more than allegiance to a flag. The man who serves America serves only the best in himself. The man who is loyal to America is loyal only to the noblest of humanity's ideals. The man who swears allegiance to America enrolls himself in the ranks of those who are pledged to freedom, to opportunity, to justice and to human progress.

High above every other issue that this convention offers to the American people we must therefore write a vindication of American loyalty. Secure in our conviction that America comes first with every American, confident that the great, warm heart of the Republic beats true and strong, convinced that the stars of the heavens are no more firmly fixed in the firmament than the stars of America's flag are shrined in the hearts of America's citizens, we must call upon our countrymen to show their devotion and their loyalty not to a Democratic President, but to the President of the United States.

It is more than coincidence that an administration which has steadfastly maintained the peace and the honor of the nation should have sought with equal energy and equal success the internal progress and domestic prosperity which is the natural product of tranquillity and fair dealing.

It is not surprising that an administration which has jealously guarded the national rights of the United States should have cherished with equal zeal the individual rights of its citizens. It is natural that an administration which has stoutly asserted the ancient freedom of our commerce on the seas should have labored with equal sincerity for the new freedom of opportunity on America's soil.

Four years ago the people or this country entrusted their Government to a man and to a party, who promised they would liberate the nation from the chains of industrial tyranny; who pledged themselves to break down the barriers behind which special privilege sat entrenched; who engaged themselves to emancipate business, to throw wide the gates of lawful enterprise, to restore to the men and women of America the paths of progress which had been choked and blocked by long years of invisible government.

Policies Bring Prosperity

That promise has been kept, that pledge has been redeemed. To-day

HAVE YOU BEEN SICK?

Then you realize the utter weakness that robs ambition, destroys appetite, and makes work a burden.

To restore that strength and stamina that is so essential, nothing has ever equalled or compared with Scott's Emulsion, because its strength-sustaining nourishment invigorates the blood to distribute energy throughout the body while its tonic value sharpens the appetite and restores health in a natural, permanent way.

If you are run down, tired, nervous, overworked or lack strength, get Scott's Emulsion to-day. It is free from alcohol.

Scott & Bowne, Bloomfield, N. J.

the prosperity which the nation enjoys bears witness that Democracy has kept the faith. To-day the gates of opportunity are open; the hosts of special privilege stand disarmed. To-day the forces of Government are encouraging, not blocking the full expression of the nation's progress. To-day the business man, the artisan and farmer find themselves free to enjoy the fruits of their labors, unhampered by the sinister power of special privilege or the selfish oppression of "invisible government."

To attempt to describe the myriad ways in which this new spirit of government has found expression would necessitate a review of every national activity, a compendium of every department of the National Government. We must content ourselves here with a brief consideration of the great landmarks which chart the change from government for the fortunate few to an evenhanded government in the interest of all.

Federal Reserve Act Freed the Country From Money Changers' Dominance

The first of these is the Federal reserve act, which freed the business man and the farmer from the financial domination of the money changers and lifted the menace of panic from our industrial life.

Five times during the past 30 years, at periods when industry was flourishing and crops were abundant, the purse strings of the country have tightened without apparent reason and the nation has been devastated by panics.

Business men had seen the patient work of years swept away in a night. Farmers had watched their homes sold over their heads. The widow and the orphan, the tire-woman and the mechanic had found themselves defrauded of their pittance as they beat upon the closed doors of insolvent banks. Paralysis had fallen upon the nation's industries. Armies of the unemployed had marched from factory to factory begging for work. Bread lines and soup kitchens had sprung up in every city of the land, and within their financial fortresses the few who brought about this universal misery watched their work and counted their gains.

Throwing down the gauntlet to those who had fattened on the system that made these evils possible, this Democratic administration passed the Federal reserve act.

The safety, the simplicity, the effectiveness of the Federal reserve plan constitute a terrible indictment of the Republican administration which had permitted panics to continue without adopting it.

Merits Nation's Thanks

In the panic of 1907, under the old system New York could not lend a country bank $50,000 with which to meet factory pay rolls; in 1915, under the new system, inaugurated by this Democratic administration, New York loaned Europe five hundred millions even though the financial centers of the world were disrupted by the world war, and there were still left in New York the largest bank deposits in its history.

If this Democratic administration had performed no other public service than the enactment of the Federal reserve act, it would deserve the unstinted approval of a grateful nation. Thanks to Democracy and to Democracy's great leader, the business man who is struggling to establish himself may now work out his destiny without living in terror of panics and hard times. The toiler in the factory may ply his tasks in security knowing that his employer's business is safe from assault. The farmer who must borrow to move his crops may do so without spending his days in anxiety, his nights in nightmares of foreclosure and disaster.

Truly, the scholar-statesman, whose rod has struck the golden rock of America's resources, to set free the wealth imprisoned for half a century, is a Moses who has led America's industries from the wilderness of doubt and despair to the Promised Land of Prosperity and hope.

In the same spirit and with the same motive that inspired the Federal reserve act this administration has devoted itself to the stimulation of American industry, agriculture and trade through all the agencies of government.

It has given a new meaning and a new force to the laws restraining big business from stifling competition.

It has created a trade commission (Continued on Seventh Page.)

A WISE Czar.

A German general, taken prisoner, related at Petrograd the following remarks of the kaiser: "I was certain of crushing the Russians when they were freely given to drink, but now that they are sober the task is much more difficult!" And he added in a melancholy tone, "Who on earth could have foreseen the anti-alcohol coup d'état perpetrated by Nicholas II?"

DAMAGING EVIDENCE

By LESLIE CONNER.

One by one the men in the bank returned from their vacations with tales of prowess and skill which varied according to age and circumstances, from Mr. Witherspoon, the president, to Johnny Doubleday, who ran errands. Barrymore was last. "But not least," thought Virginia Dale with amusement.

Dick departed to the Canadian woods, and returned, as Virginia had predicted, with a story of two wonderful bucks and a moose. The heads were at a taxidermist's and when they were ready the moose was to hang in the bank.

In due time the head arrived. It really was wonderful, with antlers like the boughs of an old oak.

Virginia stopped her work a minute to watch the hanging. Dick turned at the same instant and their eyes met. Something in the girl's expression made Dick flush. After that, she was doubly sure she was right, for Dick had all the appearance of guilt.

A few weeks later, she went into a hardware store to buy a pair of scissors. As she entered, the window display held her, for as a background for a lot of firearms, cartridges and hunting knives, were hung the heads of all kinds of animals.

"That is a fine collection of animals," she said to the salesman.

The old man scratched his head. "Yes," he said. "Mr. Mooney's been a heap of years collecting them things. And it was a darn sight finer before he sold the moose. I didn't want him to do it."

"Could you—do you know who bought it?"

After a rummage in the safe. "Yes, here 'tis. November twenty ninth. One hundred and seventy-five dollars. Richard D. Barrymore."

The next day Virginia went to shop in a city sixty miles away. She boarded an interurban car to return in the afternoon when she saw Dick Barrymore just ahead. The only vacant seat was right behind him and she took it. Dick occupied a seat alone and Virginia knew that the buckled bag beside him contained twenty thousand dollars.

By twos and threes along the road, the car was discharging its passengers. Dick slept.

Hardly anyone was left but themselves. Virginia discovered that even the conductor had disappeared somewhere up front. "If I were dishonest, I could easily appropriate that bag and get off at the next stop."

Then a little imp of mischief perched on a curl just over her ear. "Do it anyway," he whispered, "and give him a scare." And another imp moved her arm over the seat and closed her fingers around the handle of the bag. Shaking, she lifted it over the back and when the car stopped at Truesdale Virginia got off with Dick's satchel and twenty thousand dollars.

Early the next day she set out for the bank, arriving before any of the men. She locked the bag in her own closet and waited. But, to her perplexity, there was no commotion. Virginia felt that she must be losing her mind. But, determined to carry her point, she took the bag home again that night.

The bell rang at eight, and she fairly gasped with relief when Dick Barrymore came in.

"Good evening, Miss Dale. I've come, if you don't mind, for my bag," she started.

"I was only pretending sleep. There was a rumor I was to be robbed. There wasn't anything in the bag but a few stones."

Dick became very serious and looked at her oddly. "Are you sure you meant to be honest?"

"Why, Mr. Barrymore?"

"Well—I have no way of knowing."

"But surely you know me better than that—I oh, you must know I am honest."

"But you don't think I am?"

She flushed and looked away quickly. "I never thought you'd steal, no! But I just had an idea that—oh, that old moose head had worried me so. You just bought it, so there!"

"I killed that moose with my own hands."

She looked her scorn.

He laughed. "You poor little soul! It was a mean revenge of mine to torment you so. Why, dear, I love the very ground you walk on. Virginia, can you ever forgive me enough to care for me just a little?"

"Per—perhaps! If you promise not to play any more jokes!"

But She'll Get Home First!

A short time before Christmas Grace, aged four, of Newburg, Ind., was taken by her aunt to Evansville to do some "Christmas shopping." They went on the interurban, and had a double seat to themselves.

In the course of the afternoon they encountered the young man to whom the aunt was engaged, and he accompanied them to the depot when they were ready to start home. Grace's suspicions were aroused, and sidling up to her aunt she asked in a low and rather ungracious voice:

"Is he going home with us?"

"Yes, I think he is," replied the aunt.

"Well," sighed Grace Jeannette, recalling the double seat on the interurban, "I see where I'll have to ride backwards!"—Indianapolis News.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

(By E. O. SEELER, Acting Director of the Sunday School Course in the Moody Bible Institute of Chicago.)
(Copyright by Western Newspaper Union.)

LESSON FOR JULY 9

THE THESSALONIAN CHRISTIANS.

LESSON TEXT—I Thess. 3:17-20; 4:13-18; 5:14-24.
GOLDEN TEXT—If we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also that are fallen asleep in Jesus will God bring with him.—I Thess. 4:14 R. V.

This epistle is probably one of the earliest of Paul's letters (A. D. 50-53?). It links itself closely with the seventeenth chapter of the Book of Acts. Driven from Berea, Paul goes to Athens and later to Corinth, while Timothy returns to Thessalonica and carries a report to Paul at Corinth. Whereupon, perhaps within six months, Paul writes his epistle. A study of the two letters addressed to this church teaches us how Paul advised and instructed his Gentile converts. The first is a particularly cheerful, positive and helpful exhortation.

I. Thanksgiving and Testimony. (1:1-90; 2:17-20). (1) Salutation (1:1-10). The phrase, "the church of the Thessalonians which is in God" is nowhere else used. Some think it to be unique because Paul had so little to condemn or to criticize. The deity of Jesus Christ and that grace and peace proceed from God is clearly set forth.

(2) Thanksgiving (vv. 2 and 3). (a) For works of faith; (b) for their "labor of love," and (c) their "patience" (endurance). That these works were "in the sight of God" is evidence of their genuineness, and such spiritual fruitage awakened

(3) Knowledge in Paul's mind (v. 4). They were "elected" to salvation, holiness and likeness to Jesus (vv. 5-9; 1 Pet. 1:2; Eph. 1:4, 5; Rom. 8:29).

(4) Testimony (vv. 6-10). Paul could appeal to the known conduct of himself and his friends to substantiate, to prove, the standing of those candidates for holiness who had been "elected." His words had not come to them in mere exhortation and eloquence but "also in power," which governed their conduct. This was not to win applause, but in his own case he labored for their sakes (v. 5) and in their case they had received the word "with joy" in the midst of affliction to the end that they became examples (patterns or types; literally, like the far echoing notes of a trumpet) (v. 7) to all that dwell in the regions thereabout. Their obedience, consistency and missionary spirit (vv. 8-10) sounded forth everywhere and all that needed to be done was to say, "Behold the church of Thessalonica!" (5) Paul's glory and joy (2:17-20). Paul sets forth his character as a Christian worker (2:1-16). (a) His physical boldness (vv. 1, 2); (b) his faithful, impartial teaching (vv. 3-6), affectionately kind (7, 8), unselfish, working for his own support (v. 9), holy and consistent (13-16). No one "had anything on him," and such a life dares to be bold, though it is not free from persecution (v. 15). (6) Paul's desire (2:17-20). He here sets forth why this letter was written. Separated from them by persecution, he desires to return and supply the things they were yet lacking and to see face to face those whom he loved. Satan prevented (v. 18) doubtless using the bitter persecution stirred up against him. He had therefore sent Timothy from Berea to comfort them (3:15), who had made such a good report (3:1-10) that it urged Paul to greater prayer (vv. 11-13) on their behalf.

II. Ignorance Illumined (4:13-18). Paul rebukes certain sins (4:1-12), exhorting them to godliness and to love one another. He then touches upon a doctrine which was one of his strongest reasons for writing to these Thessalonians. The imminent return of Christ had been strongly emphasized, but in the months of Paul's absence some of their number had died, died without seeing Christ's promised glory. Would those who remained have any advantage over the dead saints when Christ should come? It is to set their thinking aright that Paul writes. This he does by outlining the great and blessed hope of the church in its "rapture" at Christ's coming. This is more clearly set forth here than anywhere else in the New Testament. Those who mourned over departed loved ones are not to "sorrow as those who had no hope." Jesus the risen, everlasting Savior and king, is certainly coming again in his kingdom of glory, "with a shout, with the voice of the archangel." Their sorrow is not that of the world, for those departed are but "sleeping" and will come back with Jesus when he comes. Together they who sleep and we who are alive shall be caught up "to meet the Lord in the air," all to dwell together forevermore with the Lord.

Paul's description of the events of this second coming, this rapture of the church, has not yet been fulfilled, but he and the disciples were not mistaken as to its nearness, its imminence.

III. The Hope of Church and State (5:14-24). The latter closes with moral exhortations with reference to spiritual leaders, care of one another, the spirit of prayer; and he exhorts them not to "quench the Spirit" by despising prophesying, that preaching and testifying which can be exercised by the weakest, feeblest member of the church if he be Spirit-endued.

A Way to End Border Raids

If those who criticize President Wilson for his course in the Mexican question were in possession of the information he has from various sources and had to sit the wheat from the chaff, perhaps they would hesitate before vehemently expressing themselves. At any rate they should present a clean-cut and better line of action before criticizing our Chief Magistrate. Criticism of a certain character causes our enemies to hold us in contempt as a Nation.

I have stood loyally by our President and believe that the best solution of the question is to have a zone of forty or fifty miles south of the present border administered by an official with the powers of a Governor General. Disarm all civilians in that territory and give it sufficient police protection, either military or a heavy force of mounted constabulary, and hold that zone until such time as Mexican affairs have reached a normal state.

In view of the present tense situation and the absence of a better solution of the question, Carranza should give his assent to such proposition. If he refuses, let the United States, assisted by such South American nations as may so desire, hold this forty or fifty mile zone as a buffer territory between the two countries.

Mexican bandits might still continue active, but they would meet an armed force, and it would be Mexican men, women and children and Mexican property that would suffer from these attacks, instead of the people and property of another nation. Probably this phase of the question would materially assist in solving the Mexican situation.—Letter to the Gazette, July 3, 1916.

Catarrhal Deafness Cannot Be Cured by local applications as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure catarrhal deafness, and that is by a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing and when it is entirely closed, deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Many cases of deafness are caused by catarrh, which is an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure acts thru the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Catarrhal Deafness that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Circulars free. All Druggists, 75c.

A WARNING.

The public at large should be familiarized with the fact that one of the threatening features of alcoholism is depopulation not only quantitatively but qualitatively. It leads to a degeneration of both the individual and the species. It produces a slow and progressive individual deterioration and an intellectual and physical sterility of the race.—Dr. Alfred Gordon in the Journal of the American Medical Association.

FARM POULTRY

ALL-PURPOSE CHICKEN HOUSE

Structure Possesses Four Basic Principles, Light, Ventilation, Warmth and No Drafts.

Here is a sketch of what I consider my best all-purpose house. This state ment brings forth the question, why? Before answering this I want to say that there are many good houses in use upon successful poultry farms or plants.

The house as shown contains the four basic principles necessary to a practically constructed poultry house, writes M. G. Scudder of Merriek county, Neb., in Independent Farmer. These principles are as follows: Light, ventilation, warmth and no drafts. The size of this house is 12 by 16 feet. It will house sixty head of most any variety of laying hens. Roosts and dropping boards are placed in each corner at the back of the building and made so they can be inclosed in extreme cold weather by simply dropping a curtain in front of the roosts. Two tiers of nests are placed against the wall between these roosts at the back of the building. This roosting method gives your flock a chance to divide during their roosting hours without crowding, thus avoiding dangers from colds, etc.

A window is placed toward the front in each end of the house, which helps to furnish light at the bottom of the building where needed when fowls are scratching for their food in the litter. One door, placed as indicated, with he open front two feet from the ground, assures against any draft when you enter the house. There is no need of using muslin upon this front except in stormy or exceedingly cold weather. The open front also furnishes light close to the floor, which also helps the fowls in their scratching for food. It also affords the very best possible system of circulation and ventilation when the front is open by using the adjustable windows at the top as an outlet for impure air. These windows at the front near the top furnish the light which keeps the roosts and roost boards dry. You will note that they come in just the proper place for the sun to shine into the extreme corners at the back of the building. My experience has taught me that we must have light in the house. The more we have up to a certain point, the better.

A house of this size, built of drop siding and tar paper with rubber roofing, will keep 50 or 60 fowls warm and comfortable the coldest weather. Not only is this house splendid for laying hens, but it serves well for surplus cockerels; or, if divided, makes the very best of breeding pens, or may be put to many other uses.

THE GAZETTE $1.50 A YEAR.

Which costs most— painting or waiting?

After your house needs painting, every year you wait it will require more paint and more labor to put it in good condition. And every year you wait, your house is worth less. A little paint-money is good paint-insurance.

Christy Mathewson by Walt Mason

When Christy's dead a hundred years, the fans will still discuss his play, and sigh, while shedding briny tears, "There are no men like him today! He used the brains behind his brow, and gave the foe a grievous jar; the chroniclers have told us how he was for years and years a star. Great pitchers came and cut some grass, and died, and then forgotten were; he saw them come, and saw them pass, and still kicked up a mighty stir." The chroniclers will also tell how Christy, when a game was played, filled up the pipe he loved so well, to soothe his nerves, all tired and frayed. He smoked Tuxedo every time, the critic's smoke, the mild and rare, Tuxedo fragrant and sublime, the cool, sweet smoke beyond compare.

STOP SLINGING COAL and CARRYING WOOD

It's not a woman's job, but it's part and parcel of a coal range just as much as getting up before the folks to fix the fire for breakfast. It's unnecessary, a hardship, a waste of energy, health, time and money.

For you can get a New Perfection Oil Cook Stove at your dealer's that will do everything that a coal range does, and do it better, cheaper and quicker.

A Perfection burns kerosene. And kerosene is ever so much cheaper than coal and wood. And it consumes fuel only when actually in use.

The kitchen that houses a Perfection is a cool, a pleasant place—far different from the hot, stifling coal-range kitchen. And it has every convenience—fireless cooker, a separate oven, complete control of heat, etc. Don't think of burning anything in a Perfection but Atlantic Rayolight Oil, for it is the one kerosene you can be sure of—that you can buy by name, knowing that every gallon will burn down to the last drop without a bit of smoke, without a bit of smell and without charring the wicks.

Ask for Atlantic Rayolight Oil by name, just as you get most other things the grocer sells. Then you can be sure that out of every gallon of kerosene you buy, you will get the greatest possible amount of heat.

Atlantic Rayolight Oil costs precisely the same as the questionable, unreliable kerosene.

Buy it from the dealer who displays this sign:

Wilson's Foreign Policy

"truthcrushed toearthwill rise again" with the patience that can endure and wait, watch and pray, for the certain vindication of justice, humanity and right.

He has been patriotic with a patriotism that has never wavered, a patriotism that is as pure and strong as the faith that moved the fathers when they made our country free.

No President since the Civil War has had as crucial problems to solve, and no President has displayed a grasp more sure, a statesmanship more profound.

Assailed by the wolves of privilege he has pulled their claws and drawn their teeth.

Assaulted by partisan envy he has shamed his traducers into silence and made friend and foe go forward together in the paths of national progress.

He has fired our patriotism with a new ardor; he has breathed into our ancient traditions a new vigor and a new life.

He has added strength to America's courage and mingled mercy with America's strength.

He has fastened the brakes of justice upon the wheels of power, he has lifted the mists from the temple where our liberties are enshrined.

Wilson's Place in History

And when the history of these days comes to be written, and the children of to-morrow read their nation's story, when time shall have dispelled all misconception, and the years shall have rendered their impartial verdict, one name will shine in golden splendor upon the page that is blackened with the tale of Europe's war, one name will represent the triumph of American principles over the hosts of darkness and of death.

That name will be the name of the great President who has made Democracy proud that he is a Democrat, and made Americans proud that he is an American.

It will be the name of the student and the scholar who has kept his country true to its faith in a time that tried men's souls; the name of the statesman who has championed the cause of American freedom wherever he found it oppressed; the name of the patriot who has implanted his country's flag on the highest peak to which humanity has yet aspired; the name that carried the torch of progress to victory again; the name of Woodrow Wilson, President and President to be.

POSTMARKED BOSTON

By ANNETTE DEARING.

"Why, my goodness, Dell, he hasn't even noticed us since the season opened." Marion stared down at the strip of crescent beach perplexed and frankly indignant. The new life saver stood as usual, leaning back against the tall piling near the life line.

Ever since the beach had opened he had been on duty there, stranger to all of the regular bathers and sufficiently good looking to arouse curiosity among the girls.

"I think he's a college boy earning money for his course, don't you?" Dell chewed on some grass speculatively.

"His name is Taylor Crosby. I found out that much, anyway. I asked the girl at the post office, and he gets a letter every day postmarked Boston, and mails one back every day, directed to Miss Pauline Holmes."

"How perfectly delicious!" Marion exclaimed.

"Fat ones," Dell added happily.

"Still he looks anxious; so he can't be really engaged yet. Don't you see how anxious he looks?"

He surely did. Even gloomy.

"We might get dad to invite him up to the cottage. Tell him we've heard he's a hero, don't you know? I'll coax dad now."

The major listened to his youngest non-committlingly, and sized up the life saver at a distance.

"Seems a decent sort of a fellow, Marion," he said. "I'll ask Captain Briggs about him. If he reports O. K. you can have him up when you like."

The report was O. K. So Mr. Crosby found himself invited to dinner at Major Farley's cottage. Not only did he come up that first night, but afterward, often. It was enough that he was a Crosby of Boston.

"Dad," Dell whispered, one night, perching on the arm of his chair, "I think Marion's falling in love, don't you?"

"Probably, God bless them both," returned the major genially.

But Marion never forgot the daily letters coming and going from Boston. Not that she would ask him, but she wondered.

They had gone down to meet the afternoon boat one Sunday. Taylor had been telling her of his home, and suddenly she saw him stop, alert and keen-eyed, and stare at somebody getting off the boat.

"There she is," he said excitedly. "By Jove, I never thought she'd come."

It was Pauline Holmes. She knew it. Something seemed to tell her even before she was aware that Taylor, brimful of pride and happiness, was introducing them.

"Miss Farley I do want you to meet Miss Holmes. I've been trying for six weeks to coax her down to the beach to take the leading part in the new moving-picture play I'm putting over. The major agrees with me that she's the finest person I could get to play Jess, but it took some patience and perseverance to win her over."

Miss Holmes laughed as she clasped Marion's hand in hers.

"I'm afraid I haven't Mr. Crosby's endurance. You know he wrote me that he'd actually been a fire saver here all summer just to get next to the detail and actual facts. I think he's a wonder. Hardly any one even knew where he had run away to. I think I'll go straight on up to my hotel if you don't mind. There's so much to be done tomorrow."

After she had gone, Taylor strolled along beside Marion down the walk to the deserted bathing beach. He talked fast enough now. She heard all about his aims and plans.

"I knew you wouldn't mind if I had—well, not told you all about myself. And I can swim quite decently, you know. It wasn't putting anything over that was wrong. I hope you don't mind."

Marion looked out over the old harbor at the fishing fleet just coming leisurely in, the old weather-stained sails outlined against the amber and lade-colored sky.

"I don't mind," she said. "She's very lovely."

"Do you know," he exclaimed suddenly, "I used almost to wish that you'd break down some day when you were out yonder swimming so that I could save you?"

She did not answer.

"Marion, do you hear me? Didn't you ever wish anything at all?"

Somewhat his arm was around her waist, and Marion forgot to look back over her shoulder to be sure that Dell was out of sight. It was wonderfully quiet down there along the beach, with just the gulls flying low and a reed bird calling now and then over the sandhills in the marshes.

"Nothing," she said softly, hanging her head, "only that you wouldn't get so many letters postmarked Boston." (Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate)

What Could He Do?

"I hate to be contradicted," she said. "Then I won't contradict you," he returned.

"You don't love me," she asserted. "I don't," he admitted.

"You are a hateful old thing!" she cried.

"I am," he replied.

"I believe you are trying to tease me," she said.

"I am," he conceded.

"And you do not love me."

"I don't."

"Well," she said at last. "I do hate a man who's weak enough to be led by a woman."—Houston Post.

MONEY GOES FOR GROCERIES.

An interesting bit of testimony comes from the section of Minnesota which recently became dry through what might be called an automatic application of prohibition to a region where no election was held to settle the question, namely, the enforcement of an old Indian treaty. Because of this action there is not now an open saloon in Itasca county, and as a result a marvelous reformation has taken place. One year ago seventy-nine tons of beer were shipped in. This year there was no beer, but the books show that seventy-nine tons more of groceries were consumed at this point than during the corresponding month of last year. The Minneapolis Journal says that the records of the mining companies, which employ the large population of foreigners, show fewer layoffs among the men than ever before and the stores report larger and more profitable business from these employees.

THE AMERICAN TOBACCO COMPANY

to afford to business generally a more direct and prompt administration of the laws relating to business.

It has established government representatives throughout the world, whose sole duty is to foster the expansion of American trade.

It has created a closer union of economic, commercial and financial interests between the United States and the nations of South America.

It has declared in language that no court and no employer can misunderstand that "the labor of a human being is not a commodity or article of commerce," and that no employer can compel his men to work for him against their will.

It has freed the farmer from the chains of a financial system which was devised for business and not for farming and has enabled him to sell his produce at prices that compensate him for the sweat of the harvest, the tilling of the soil.

Time does not allow me to enumerate all the laws, all the activities which will establish this administration in our economic history as the most humane since Lincoln's and the most progressive since Jefferson's Underwood Tariff Praised.

But I cannot close this brief and inadequate review of what the present administration has accomplished without adverting to its courageous and statesmanlike solution of the nation's tariff problem.

The Underwood tariff enacted by this administration has banished greed from the gates of our ports and written justice into our tariff schedules.

Of all the tariffs we ever enacted this is the fairest and the best.

Until the foreign war reduced importations no new tariff was ever more satisfactory. The highest protective tariff ever written would probably have given us no more revenue during this European war, and a higher tariff on raw material would have hampered our manufacturers, a higher tariff on the necessities of life would have placed a woeful burden on the poor man in the conditions which the war abroad has brought about.

By the Underwood law this administration has taken the tariff out of politics; by the new Tariff Commission it proposes to take politics out of the tariff.

The consumers of the nation, and this means every man, woman and child within its borders, have been freed from an unique and oppressive system which enriched the few at the expense of the many.

Quotes Jacob H. Schiff

It is not my purpose to discuss the assaults that special privileges have made upon the provisions of the Underwood act. These selfish and unfounded criticisms have been completely answered by one who is amply competent to judge and public-spirited enough to speak. Democracy's reply to those who would overthrow the tariff law that a Democratic Congress has enacted is the reply of that eminent banker, that financial genius, Mr. Jacob H. Schiff.

Speaking at a banquet of the Republican Club in New York last January, by virtue of his life-long allegiance to the Republican party, Mr. Schiff declared:

"I want to explain that nothing can stop the great prosperity we now have except a renewal of tariff agitation in the next campaign. Standing here on holy Republican ground I say without fear or favor if you renew in the next presidential campaign the tariff agitation of the past, if you threaten the country and show it you want a renewal of special privileges and high protection, the people will have none of it. The people have learned; the workmen and the farmers have learned and they cannot be misled any longer. I do not say that because I love the Republican party less, but because I love it more. My heart is for the Republican party, but my common sense makes me a Democrat."

And in these words Mr. Schiff voices the opinions of men with whom special interest is secondary to the welfare of all.

Under the present administration the United States has enjoyed a wonderful era of good business and good times.

To-day prosperity shines from blazing furnaces and glowing forges. It echoes from busy docks and from thronged emporiums of trade. Its message of plenty fills the land with the chant of the spindle and of loom, lifting the mortgage from the poor man's home and promising his children a future that seemed impossible before.

During the past four years this country has experienced a steady and continuous improvement in business.

Wealth has increased 21 per cent., the value of manufactured products 39 per cent., capital 43 per cent., wages 54 per cent., and exports 77 per cent. The flood-tide of our prosperity has risen to such an unprecedented height that the only limit to trade is our ability to make and transport the commodities demanded at home and abroad. Our fields and our factories cry aloud for men and unemployment has ceased to be a problem. Wages have advanced, building operations have resumed, real estate has recovered its worth.

There is not an idle car on our railroads or an idle ship at our docks. For the first time in history America's greatest port has become the world's greatest port. Economists say that railroad earnings are an index to prosperity. This year the earnings of our railroads are $60,000,000 more than under the last year of Republican rule.

Our prosperity is not local. The cotton fields of the South, the factories of the North, the marts of the East and the mines of the West feel it—with a national response and a national thrill.

Nowhere else on earth is there a more equitable distribution of what the energy of labor hammers into existence out of the material which capital places in its hand.

The calamity howler complains that our productive capacity is keyed to such a high pitch that our industrial machine is threatened with heated bearings, but he ignores the self-oiling attachments, which this Democratic administration has attached to our economic and industrial mechanism. While calamity wallers talk of the struggle and the battle which is to come after the war, earnest men of business, with America in their minds and America in their hearts, act on the principles that the better we serve our country and ourselves in the present the better we prepare for the future.

Agriculture, Manufacturing and Commerce Basis of To-Day's Prosperity.

The prosperity of to-day is a true prosperity, for it is founded on a true balance between agriculture, manufacturing and commerce. Ask the first man you meet how many of his friends are employed in munition factories! Ask the bankers you know how many of their accounts are munition makers' accounts! Their answer will show what a trivial figure war orders play in our business to-day.

Under this Democratic administration

THRIFT does not mean Penuriousness!

Its first principle consists in getting FULL VALUE for each Dollar of income expended.

Getting less is not complimentary to the intelligence of even a Millionaire.

Being liberal and generous, in affairs where it is proper and deliberate to be so, differs widely from being thrifless, thoughtless and careless in buying things, on a business basis.

A habit of "Jumping at Conclusions," instead of Thinking out these Conclusions, costs many a man a lifetime of Un-success.

TOO many Americans indolently act upon the shallow theory that an article "must be" WORTH more, merely because it Costs more.

They are thus taxed a heavy price, all through life, for such an indolent habit of Thought.

They work hard, industriously and intelligently, to acquire money.

Then (for their personal needs) they "Spend it with a Spade."

Is this complimentary to the judgment of even the Wealthiest?

Do people become Wealthy who acquire the careless HABIT of "Spending Money," instead of intelligent, thoughtful BUYING with it?

MONEY cannot make BETTER Fabric Tires,—at ANY price,—than Goodrich 47-Year Experience,—200,000,000 lbs. Purchasing-Power, and Deliberate Intention, are now producing.

No Rubber Concern in the world could afford to offer the low Fair-List Prices here quoted, on Fabric Tires (for such HIGH quality) without the enormous Goodrich VOLUME, which so reduces Cost as to make these lowest prices possible.

When, therefore, you pay MORE than these Goodrich Fair-List prices for ANY Fabric Tire, you are NOT getting "better" Tires.

tion a record-breaking balance of trade stands in our favor. In the last nine months our exports exceeded our imports by $1,000,000,000. In all the history of all the nations in all the ages no country has ever enjoyed such a gigantic balance of trade. Its figures almost defy comprehension. During all the years of Republican rule our export trade never reached $300,000,000 in any one month. Last March it reached $410,000,000. If this rate should continue for a year we will have approximately a yearly export business of $5,000,000,000.

This is unparalleled in the annals of commerce. Hitherto England has been the greatest of exporting countries. But her best year is two billions less than our present year.

This avalanche of money poured into our pockets by the rest of the world as a tribute to our national resources and our fidelity to peaceful industry is not the measure of our prosperity. It is only the symbol. Compared with our trade at home this foreign trade is a mere pittance. Our domestic commerce to-day is larger than the foreign commerce of all the nations of the world combined.

No Other So Prosperous

Against this actual condition our opponents raise an argument of "ifs". With greater truth we can also enter the realm of conjecture and declare that if another candidate had been elected four years ago, the United States would be at war to-day. A ton of "ifs," do not weigh as much as a single fact. Our opponents forget that "if" the flight of the seagulls off the coast of the West Indies had not directed his course, Columbus would not have discovered America, when he did. But the seagulls were there—"ifs" cannot banish them—and Columbus found our land.

So, to-day, the figures are here, the work is here, the business is here, the money is here, to prove our prosperity under Democratic rule, and all the "ifs" in all the languages cannot alter the situation.

Measured by every possible standard—by the volume of exports and imports, by the expansion of domestic trade, by the condition of labor, by the rate of wages, by the size of bank deposits and clearing-house returns, by the balance of trade or by the amount of gold in the country, by any and all of these standards, this country to-day is enjoying prosperity such as no other country has ever enjoyed before.

Americanism and peace, preparedness and prosperity—these are the issues upon which the Democratic party stands, and the heart of Democracy swells with pride that is more than a pride of party, as it hails the man, who has asserted this Americanism, assured this peace, advocated this preparedness and produced this prosperity.

FARM POULTRY

RAISE TURKEYS WITH PROFIT

Many a Poor Little Poult Never Comes to Be Beautiful Bird Because of Wrong Start.

Turkey hens raise much better poult than chicken hens, for the reason that they never wean them, but hover them at night and watch over them days until they are nearly grown. Many a poor little poult never comes to be a "beautiful Thanksgiving bird" because he has not the right start in life. He does not require much, and that is just the point where we fail him. We want him to grow, and we stuff him until he gets indigestion, an enlarged liver and numerous other ills, and some fine morning we find him with his little toes pointed toward the North star. In the wild state little turkeys spend the first few weeks of their lives in the woods and live on insects and seeds. They have to exorcise to get food and consume only a small quantity at a time. We cannot follow nature exactly, but we can use good sense if we will. A raw egg is nature's food for a young bird. More than that, it is easily digested and, like insects, it is a meat food therefore a good substitute. Wheat bran is a bulky and bone-making food and will not harden in the bowels and cause trouble. Sour milk is medicinal to turkeys and chicks also, and is a protein food. The three can be combined in a mash, made rather dry, never sloppy, and make an excellent starter for the little poult. This alone is their food for three weeks, fed in small quantities on a clean board. For the first three days they are better shut in the coop with the mother, but after that they should romp at will in the dry grass. Grain is given only a little at first, and gradually increased until it forms one whole feeding, preferably at night, and after they are large enough to wander over a wide range one feeding is sufficient each day. Wheat and cracked corn are perhaps the best grains.

ANIMAL FOOD FOR CHICKENS

Sour Milk Exerts Beneficial Influence on Digestion of Young Fowls, Account Its Acid.

The best animal food for chicks is sour milk. On account of the acid it contains sour milk exerts a beneficial influence on the digestion of the chick. Sour milk can safely be kept before the chicks all the time. Milk should always be supplied in fountains that will not permit the chick to get its down wet. A chick stuck up with milk is a sorry sight. Vessels in which milk is supplied should be scalded and aired daily. Some poultrymen still practice and advocate the feeding of eggs tested out of incubators to baby chicks. A hard-boiled egg, when of known quality, makes a rather indigestible food for the chick's tender organs, but when eggs are fed that come from an incubator that has subjected them to a temperature of 103 degrees for a week, one is courting danger. Not all eggs that are tested out of incubators are infertile. If you feed tested-out eggs to baby chicks be quite certain that they are infertile. Eggs containing blood spots or red streaks should be discarded, as they were fertile and the germs are in a state of decomposition. The infertile egg, when held before a strong light, is perfectly clear.

FEEDING CHICKS SOUR MILK

Dangers of White Diarrhea and Other Diseases Can Be Greatly Reduced by Its Use.

By feeding sour milk to chicks, the dangers of white diarrhea and other chick diseases can be greatly reduced. The feeding of sour milk has a beneficial influence for the growth of chicks and in lessening mortality from all causes. The milk should be fed in porcelain-lined pans and should be kept before the chicks at all times.
